Our Brand

Mission & Vision

The Story

Our brand draws its spirit from retro Italo design — a world where geometry, rhythm, and elegance come together in playful harmony. Italo design loves repetition, symmetry, and bold shapes — circles, diamonds, and grids that create a sense of motion. Think of terrazzo tiles, mod furniture, and vintage signage.
Everything feels designed to dance.

These tones echo Mediterranean light — sun-drenched but slightly faded, evoking both glamour and nostalgia. Retro Italo style balances fun with polish; it's elegant but doesn't take itself too seriously. It's the feeling of sipping a Negroni in a 1970s Milan cocktail bar — cinematic, chic, a little flirtatious.

Glossy lacquered surfaces, patterned tiles, velvet seating, and brass accents add tactile richness — a world that feels both retro and luxurious. The era was about la dolce vita — leisure, sociability, and style. It evokes music, nightlife, and optimism — the same celebratory energy the cocktail festival embodies.

This is the foundation of our brand: a visual and emotional language that celebrates the art of gathering — spirited, stylish, and forever in motion.

Typography

Hierachy

This is an example of how we use our typographic structure. For advertising, banner containing messages, and other applications where short texts are used, follow the guidelines described here to establish a hierarchical order in presenting information

TITLE IN BOLD AND LARGE TEXT THAT REQUIRES EMPHASIS.

Subtitles are typographically smaller than titles but still larger than paragraph text. This balance is crucial for creating an effective visual hierarchy that guides the reader through the content. Subtitles typically span from two to four lines.

Image style Guide

Image Style Guide

Our photography captures a mood of understated luxury and effortless sophistication. Each image is intentional — composed with cinematic lighting, refined textures, and a sense of quiet indulgence. Drinks, interiors, and people are shown in moments that feel lived-in yet elevated, where elegance meets spontaneity. Lighting should be natural or softly diffused, emphasizing warmth, depth, and atmosphere. Color palettes lean toward rich neutrals, deep greens, caramels, and touches of red, evoking timeless hospitality. Every frame should tell a story — intimate, modern, and subtly playful — inviting the viewer into our world.
